

Kymera - Magic Wand Remote Control

Product Name: Kymera - Magic Wand Remote Control

Manufacturer: -

Model Number: PGIFTSO622

Totally button-free, the Wand can 'learn' up to 13 infrared codes from your existing remote(s) and fling them into the ether when you perform one of 13 predefined gestures. It's a kind of magic. Simply swish, whirl and flick to change channels, adjust volume and much more! Utterly astounding, this beautifully crafted gizmo looks like the kind of thing you might find in Diagon Alley. The difference is you use it to control your telly, DSTV, stereo or any other infra-red device via various abracadabra-ish gestures. There are no buttons, so to change the channel or the volume you'll have to wave it around in the air using some easy-to-remember gestures. Clockwise or counter-clockwise motion adjusts the volume up or down; simple up-and-down movements switch between channels. You can assign various functions to it. To add to its supernatural nature, the Wand also features a 'heartbeat' in the form of various pulses that confirm gesture recognition and tell you when the batteries are low. It even goes into sleep mode after 60 seconds of inactivity and 'wakes' when you pick it up. Gorgeously packaged in a smart presentation box, the Wand is set to become the remote control of choice for any gadgeteer with Potter-esque aspirations. So don't be a Muggle, get ordering. It's totally wizard!

Modes

- Practice mode - allows the user to practise making the gestures and verify that they have been recognised correctly before learning associated IR data.
- Sleep mode - the wand will enter a low-power sleep mode after 60 seconds of inactivity.
- Learning mode - you can teach it one or more new codes for any of the possible gestures.

Dimensions

- Wand measures 35.5cm(L) x 2cm(D)

Battery Requirements

- Requires 2x AAA batteries (included)

Links & Downloads

- Help & Support
- Techno Magic: How the Wand really works \(PDF 127 Kb\)
- Two English inventors \(PDF 123 Kb\)

Price: R1,155.00

Availability: This product was added to our catalog on Sunday 12 February, 2012