This is the latest generation of super agile Quads that will enable a lot of new people to get into the hobby of radio control. They are easier to fly than even the small helicopters, yet this quad is very agile in the EXPERT mode and can perform axial and pitch flips.

It may be small, but the Heliguy Viper micro quadcopter's performance capabilities belie its size with it even being able to fly outdoors, wind dependent.

The Viper comes ready-to-fly with a 4-channel LCD display 2.4GHz transmitter that features adjustable sensitivity modes for normal or expert flight. Charging for the 240mAh LiPo battery is handled via a USB charge cable.

Featuring a neat moulded, fully enclosed fuselage to protect the main electronics, the stylish design looks and performs amazing in flight. Turning cycles, figure of eights, banking are simple. Super stable indoors or even outside on a calm day. The supplied power system provides more than enough power to allow for flip somersaults and rolls in EXPERT mode.
