The new "Sport" range fits securely with maximum comfort and is unaffected by rain, sweat and low temperatures. Sennheiser offers a model for virtually every taste and every wearing style. Everyone is running, jumping and working out with an iPod or MP3 player, but most headphones used for sports activities fall out of your ears, rot with sweat and break when crushed in your gym bag. These new Sennheisers can handle it..... Above all, sports headphones have to fit securely, be resistant to humidity and to low temperatures and be easy to clean. Sennheiser's answer: sturdy, hard-wearing headphones that not only go in a completely new direction in terms of design and ear coupling, but also have an extremely well-balanced sound. The water-resistant earpieces have a cable that remains soft and flexible even at -10°C and the overall construction is both flexible and tough. This range has been a major project for Sennheiser and has been two years in the making. The radical styling and ergonomics are by noted German industrial designers Susanne Ewert and Markus Hohl and has already won four prestigious IF Design awards.

A small 'stopper' that is twisted gently into the outer ear makes sure that the earpiece stays in place even during the most energetic activities. Rubber pads in various sizes ensure optimum fit and comfort. The earpieces themselves also have a choice of three sizes, allowing them to be optimally adapted to the ear canal.

Sennheiser MX 70 VC Sport Adds and in-line volume control The stereo earphones MX 70 Sport and MX 70 VC Sport are ideal for joggers. The faces of the earpieces are magnetic, allowing these models to be casually clipped around the neck. The earphones come complete with a carrying case and an extension cable for the asymmetrical cable. This allows a player to be worn at different heights, with a convenient cable clip to hold the connection cable to the clothing. Ear adapters ensure an optimum fit inside the ear canal. The model MX 70 VC Sport also has a volume control integrated into the cable, and the earpieces can be clipped to this too.
